Schaefer's skill at the 18.1 balk line, one of the most difficult games in billiards, will always have a charm. No matter where or when he exhibits his cunning with the cue, he is sure to attract a crowd, for no matter who his opponent may be, the Wizard will always play to win. The followers of the sport, who have so frequently been thrilled by his delicate stroke and marvelous resourcefulness, know that.

Schaefer talks of returning the champlonship emblem to the donors to be competed for in a tournament, but he cannot, ccording to the conditions of gift, do so. It would be a satisfactory way of evolving his successor, of course, but it is likely he will be challenged by George Sutton, the 18.2 champion, and falling to defend his title, the trophy will revert to the previous holder, who happens to have
